

Bring Groundwater Lessons to Life!

Would you like your students to hear how the groundwater lessons they're learning are being used in the real world? Would your students benefit from hearing more about a career in the water industry?

Have a local water expert come to your classroom to share information about threats and issues facing your local groundwater supply and about their career path into the water industry. The Groundwater Foundation has compiled a list of experts who are willing to come to your classroom to share their stories and/or offer a mentor experience for a day.

See contact information on the revers of this map for people available to bring groundwater lessons to life. Please contact the expert directly and let them know that you are teaching groundwater lessons in your classroom. If you have any difficulty getting in touch with a person from your area please, contact Sara Brock at sbrock@groundwater.org or 402-434-2740 ext. 110.
